BUYING AN ECU

Buying an ECU at Ladipo? Send these first.

ECUs that look the same often aren’t. These five checks decide whether a module will work in your car.

Swipe ▶

1. The number on the label

Not the shape. The number.

Two ECUs from the same car can differ by one digit, and only one will match. Send a clear photo of the label, for example `Bosch 0 261 209 012`.

2. Your car, exactly

Make, model, year, engine

“BMW” isn’t enough. `E46 330i, 2003, M54B30` is. The engine code is on the engine and in your papers.

3. The connector

Count the plugs

4. Photos before you pay

See the exact part

Ask for photos of the module you will get, not a picture of a similar one.

5. Tested before handover

Then programmed to your car

A used ECU usually has to be cloned or virginised and aligned to your immobiliser before the car will start.
